Who was the Muhammad Ghori?

▪ About

- The Ghurids had started as vassals of Ghazni, but had soon thrown off their yoke.
- Mu'izz ad-Din Muhammad, also known as Muhammad of Ghor, was the Sultan of the Ghurid Empire from 1173 to 1202 and as the sole ruler from 1202 to 1206.
- He is credited with establishing Muslim rule in the Indian subcontinent, which lasted for centuries.

- Muhammad Ghor was of Persian origin,
- He ruled over parts of modern-day Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Iran, Northern India, Pakistan, Tajikistan, and Turkmenistan.
- Ghaznavids felt threatened by the Ghurids so they captured and poisoned the brother of the Ghurid emperor Alauddin Hussain Shah.
- Subsequently, Alauddin Hussain Shah captured Ghazni by defeating the Ghaznavid ruler Bahram Shah.
- The power of the Ghurids increased under Sultan Alauddin who earned the title of the world burner' (jahan-soz) because during the middle of the twelfth century he ravaged Ghazni and burnt it.
- Following Mahmud Ghazni's death, Ghori ascended to the Ghazni throne.
- Rise of Ghurids:
 - Towards the middle of the twelfth century, a group of Turkish tribesmen, who were partly Buddhist and partly Pagan, shattered the power of the Seljuk Turks.
 - In the vacuum, two new powers rose to prominence, the Khwarizmi empire based in Iran, and the Ghurid empire based in Ghur in northwest Afghanistan.
 - The rising power of the Khwarizmi empire severely limited the Central Asian ambition of the Ghurids.
 - Khurasan, which was the bone of contention between the two, was soon conquered by Khwarizm Shah.
 - This left no option for the Ghurids but to look for expansion towards India.
 - Proceeding by way of the Gomal pass, Mu'izz ad-Din Muhammad conquered Multan and Uchch.
 - In 1178, he attempted to penetrate Gujarat by marching across the Rajputana desert.
 - By 1190, Muizzuddin Muhammad had conquered Peshawar, Lahore and Sialkot, and was poised for a thrust towards Delhi and the Gangetic doab.
- Background for Conflict between Muhammad Ghori and other Indian Rulers:
 - Gujarat ruler completely routed the Muhammad Ghori in a battle near Mount Abu, and Muizzuddin Muhammad was lucky in escaping alive.
 - He then realized the necessity of creating a suitable base in the Punjab before venturing upon the conquest of India.
 - The Chauhan power had been steadily growing. The Chauhan rulers had defeated and killed a large number of Turks who had tried to invade Rajasthan, most probably from the Punjab side.
 - They had also captured Delhi (called Dhillika) from the Tomars around the middle of the century.

What is the Battle of Tarain?

- First Battle of Tarain in 1191:
 - Thus, a battle between these two ambitious rulers, Muizzuddin Muhammad and Prithviraj was inevitable.
 - The conflict started with rival claims for Tabarhinda. In the battle which was fought at Tarain in 1191.
 - The Ghurid forces were completely routed, Muizzuddin Muhammad's life being saved by a young Khalji horseman.
 - Prithviraj now pushed on to Tabarhinda and conquered it after a twelve- month siege.
 - Little attempt was made by Prithviraj to oust the Ghurids from the Punjab.
 - This gave Muizzuddin Muhammad time to regroup his forces and make another bid for India the following year.
 - He rejected the proposal said to be made by Prithviraj to leave Punjab under the possession of the Ghurid ruler.
- Second Battle of Tarain in 1192:
 - The second Battle of Tarain in 1192 is regarded as one of the turning points in Indian history.
 - Muizzuddin Muhammad had made careful preparations for the contest.
 - It is said that he marched with 1,20,000 men, including a force of heavy cavalry, fully equipped with steel coats and armor and 10,000 mounted archers.
 - As soon as Prithviraj realized the nature of the Ghurid threat, he appealed to all the rajas of northern India for help.

- Prithviraj fielded a force of 3,00,000 including a large body of cavalry and 300 elephants.
- The numerical strength of the Indian forces was probably greater, but the Turkish army was better organized and led.
- The battle was mainly a battle between cavalry.
- A large number of Indian soldiers lost their lives.
- Prithviraj escaped, but was captured near Saraswati (Sirsa).
- The Turkish armies captured the fortresses of Hansi, Saraswati and Samana. Then they attacked and captured Ajmer.
- Prithviraj was allowed to rule over Ajmer for some time. Soon after, Prithviraj was executed on a charge of 'conspiracy', and Prithviraj's son succeeded him.
- Delhi also was restored to its Tomar ruler but this policy was reversed soon after.
- The ruler of Delhi was ousted and Delhi was made a base for further Turkish advance into the Ganga valley.
- Following a rebellion, a Muslim army recaptured Ajmer and installed a Turkish general there.
- Prithviraj's son moved to Ranthambore and founded a new powerful Chauhan kingdom there.
- Thus, the Delhi area and eastern Rajasthan passed under Turkish rule.
- Conquest of Bihar and Bengal:
 - Turkish dominance was expanded over the Ganga-Yamuna doab and the surrounding territory including Bihar and Bengal between 1192 and 1206.
 - In order to establish themselves in the doab, the Turks had first to defeat the powerful Gahadavala kingdom of Kanauj.
 - The Gahadavala ruler Jaichandra had been ruling over the state peacefully for two decades.
 - After Tarain, Muizzuddin returned to Ghazni leaving the affairs in India in the hands of one of his trusted slaves, Qutbuddin Aibak.
 - During the next two years, the Turks overran parts of upper doab, without any opposition from the Gahadavalas.
- Battle of Chandawar:
 - In 1194, Muizzuddin returned to India. He crossed the Jamuna with 50,000 cavalry and moved towards Kanauj.
 - A hotly contested battle between Muizzuddin and Jaichandra was fought at Chandawar near Kanauj.
 - Jaichandra had almost carried the day when he was killed by an arrow, and his army was totally defeated.
- Expedition to Banaras:
 - Muizzuddin now moved on to Banaras which was ravaged, a large number of temples there being destroyed.
 - The Turks established their hold over a huge territory extending up to the borders of Bihar.
 - Thus, the battles of Tarain and Chandawar laid the foundations of Turkish rule in north India.
 - Muizzuddin lived till 1206. During this period, he occupied the powerful forts of Bayana and Gwalior to guard the southern flank of Delhi.
- Aibak's Expedition:
 - A little later, Aibak conquered Kalinjar, Mahoba and Khajuraho from the Chandel rulers of the area.
 - With a base in the doab the Turks launched a series of raids in the neighboring areas. Aibak defeated Bhima III, the ruler of Gujarat, and Anhilwara and a number of other towns were ravaged and plundered.
 - Though a Muslim governor was appointed to rule the place he was soon ousted.
 - This showed that the Turks were not yet strong enough to be able to rule over such far-flung areas.
 - The Turks, however, were more successful in the east.
- Expedition of Bakhtiyar Khalji (1205 AD.):
 - Bakhtiyar Khalji, whose uncle had fought at the battle of Tarain, had been appointed in

- charge of some of the areas beyond Banaras.
- He had taken advantage of this to make frequent raids into Bihar, which was at the time in the nature of a no-man's land.
- During these raids, he had attacked and destroyed some of the famous Buddhist monasteries of Bihar, Nalanda and Vikramasila which had no protector left.
- He had also accumulated much wealth and gathered many followers around him. During his raids, he also collected information about the routes to Bengal.
- Bengal was a rich prize because its internal resources and flourishing foreign trade had given it the reputation of being fabulously rich.
- Making careful preparations, Bakhtiyar Khalji marched with an army towards Nadia, a pilgrim center where the Sena ruler, Lakshmana Sena, had built a palace, and to which he had gone on pilgrimage.
- Turkish horse merchants had become a common sight in those days.
- Pretending to be a horse-merchant, Bakhtiyar Khalji made a sudden attack on the palace, and created a great confusion.
- Bakhtiyar then marched and occupied the Sena capital, Lakhnauti, without any opposition.
- Lakshmana Sena moved to Sonargaon in south Bengal where he and his successors continued to rule.
- Bakhtiyar Khalji was formally appointed the governor of Bengal by Muizzuddin.
- He ruled over it as a virtually independent ruler. But he was not to enjoy this position for long.

How did Muhammad Ghorī Die?

- He foolishly undertook an expedition into the Brahmaputra valley in Assam.
- The Magh rulers of Assam retreated and allowed the Turkish armies to come in as far as they could.
- Finally, the fatigued and drained armies realized they couldn't go any farther and chose to retire.
- They could find no provisions on the way, and were constantly harassed by the Assamese armies.
- Tired and weakened by hunger and illness, the Turkish army had to face a battle in which there was a wide river in front and the Assamese army at the back.
- The Turkish armies suffered a total defeat.
- Bakhtiyar Khalji was able to come back with a few followers with the help of some mountain tribes. But his health and spirits were broken.
- Ghorī was critically ill and confined to his bed when he was stabbed to death by one of his own amirs.
